

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An objective lens for converging light onto an information recording medium includes a refracting interface for converging an incident light into a convergent light, and a refractive index varying member disposed between the refracting interface and the information recording medium, and having a refractive index that is varied according to an externally applied voltage.

5